

Jo Stewart

Having worked most of my life in accountancy, like most people I was busy making a living and had no time for hobbies. Upon retirement I found time to explore other interests.

I was surprised to find that I loved to draw and to experiment with the use of colour. I have not had any lessons, and have learned a bit from books. I found my other love is writing. I have written a few short stories on various subjects, just for my own amusement. I sometimes like to write simple poetry, I try to reach within people and make them think.

I keep a tight hold of my inner child and never want to become boring, I love to dance and look at the stars, to laugh and sing.